

Scotstown Medical Group/New Dyce Medical Practice Salaried GP/Locum, 4-6 sessions per week

Scotstown Medical Group is an innovative, forward-looking GP partnership with a combined patient list size of around 22,500 in the north of Aberdeen. Opportunities now exist at our Scotstown and New Dyce practices for enthusiastic GPs to grow their skills with both city and rural patients as well as help develop new models of care. With a team that includes advanced nurse practitioners, physician associates and pharmacists, we are a well-established undergraduate educational and GP training practice with the experience to support the GP in their role. Clinical leadership and support across the organisation is provided from the partners at Scotstown.

We are now seeking to recruit salaried doctors (around 4-6 sessions per week) at both our practice sites, although a long-term locum post would be considered if preferred. We offer a competitive salary package plus golden hello subject to eligibility.

Applicants should be proactive, effective communicators who relish the prospect of contributing to GP services as part of a multi-disciplinary team. You should already possess the right to work in the UK, and currently or will soon be included on the NHS performers list. Starting date is negotiable as we are willing to wait for the right candidates.

So if you'd like to further your career with a growing organisation that offers support for your personal development plus the opportunity to help us take the next step in our evolution, then please contact our Business Manager or email him with your application at the address below. Informal enquiries from interested candidates welcome.
